

Special Recognition Award

Chris Baxter OAM

Presented to Chris Baxter OAM founder and editor of Wild magazine in recognition of his significant contribution to the development of recreational bushwalking in Victoria.

Chris Baxter OAM founded Wild magazine in Victoria in 1981. When Chris retired in 2005 due to illness, Wild had published its 25th anniversary issue, number 100.

Under Chris' leadership Wild provided details on walking destinations, information and surveys on equipment, news on conservation issues impacting on the bushwalking amenity and many other features of interest to bushwalkers. Wild magazine also promoted the endeavours of many adventurers thereby instilling enthusiasm into upcoming generations.

Wild also supported conservation and not-for-profit organisations and from the outset recognized its duty to support the responsible preservation of our distressingly scarce wild places. Wild's active support for the environment included fearless and significant editorial coverage and considerable financial support. Chris ensured "only advertising relevant to Wild's specialist publications and which conforms with Wild's ethical guidelines is accepted." Wild donated many thousands of dollars to conservation, Christian and humanitarian organisations. This stance afforded opportunities for organisations such as Bushwalking Victoria to access advertising options that they could not otherwise afford.

From 1991 Wild published Wild GUIDES, small booklets, many of which relate to Victoria, that provide valuable information for bushwalkers.

CAEX Bushwalking Club

Presented to CAEX Bushwalking Club in recognition of the contribution of the club to the enhancement and development of recreational bushwalking in Victoria, furthering the objectives of Bushwalking Victoria and adding value to the wider Victorian community.

CAEX Bushwalking Club was formed in 1982 by ex-members of a 'Bushwalking for Pleasure' course conducted by the Council of Adult Education (CAE). When the CAE stopped offering the course in 1985, an offer by the club to take over the courses was accepted by the CAE. For 13 years CAEX conducted eight-week and three-week bushwalking skills courses twice a year, training over 1,000 Victorians to enjoy bushwalking in a safe and informed manner. Over two dozen club members contributed to the training which included day walks, base camping, overnight walking and classroom sessions on topics such as equipment, clothing, navigation, first aid, trip planning and food.

Melbourne Bushwalkers

Presented to the Melbourne Bushwalkers in recognition of the contribution of the club to the enhancement and development of recreational bushwalking in Victoria, furthering the objectives of Bushwalking Victoria and adding value to the wider Victorian community.

The Melbourne "Bushies" were established in 1940. Since 1946 they have provided group transport for members going on walks, first using a furniture van and later a bus. This enabled many students and other young people to go bushwalking, which otherwise would have been beyond their means. In the 1940s and 1950s young people, especially students, generally did not own their own car. More recently the regular bus trips provided by Melbourne Bushies has enabled many overseas students to enjoy Victoria's bushwalking opportunities.

From 1949 to 1987 Melbourne Bushies actively promoted bushwalking in Victoria by publishing an annual magazine 'Walk' that included track notes that were a popular source of information about bushwalks for the general public. Walk also included articles on current conservation issues and natural history. In 1973 a special edition of collected and updated track notes, accompanied by bush safety, equipment and navigation information, was published as Track Notes '73.

Over the years, Melbourne Bushwalkers provided many office bearers and convenors to the Federation, now Bushwalking Victoria.

Melbourne University Mountaineering Club

Presented to the Melbourne University Mountaineering Club in recognition of the clubs' contribution to the enhancement and development of recreational bushwalking in Victoria, furthering the objectives of Bushwalking Victoria and adding value to the wider Victorian community.

MUMC was formed in 1944. In the 1950s and 1960s the club produced bushwalking maps, mainly for the alpine areas of Victoria and Tasmania. In 1961 the club first published 'Equipment for Mountaineering', which later came to be known as 'Equipment for Bushwalking and Mountaineering'. In 1962 MUMC published a Bushwalking Map Index and in 1979 published the 'Guide to the Victorian Alps'.

The club has always taken a very active role in Bush Search and Rescue, with club member Bill Bewsher being the first convenor and a field organiser until 1970. The club continues to provide many dedicated Bush Search and Rescue participants.

MUMC affiliated with the Federation in 1947 and club member David Hogg instigated the Federation Newsletter in 1966 and edited it until 1969. He also headed the steering committee that established Federation Hut at Mt Feathertop and MUMC members helped in its construction. MUMC members were also actively involved in establishing the Australian Alps Walking Track from 1970 to 1974.

Many MUMC members were leaders or facilitators of the Bushwalking and Mountaincraft Leadership course, ensuring its success over many years.

Melbourne Walking Club

Presented to the Melbourne Walking Club in recognition of the contribution of the club to the enhancement and development of recreational bushwalking in Victoria, furthering the objectives of Bushwalking Victoria and adding value to the wider Victorian community.

The Melbourne Walking Club (formerly the Melbourne Amateur Walking and Touring Club) has existed for over 100 years. In 1929 the MWC created a publication titled 'The Melbourne Walker' (later to become 'The Walker'). Initially for the benefit of members, it was published annually as a record of the clubs activities and history. In 1931 it went on public sale and was published continuously for sixty years. It was a source of detailed information that enabled people planning a trip to assess the nature of many walks and gain important information about the more remote areas of Victoria.

'The Walker', like its sister publication 'Walk' was particularly effective in the post second-world-war period when there was an increase in interest in bushwalking but little information available about the best places to walk, the interesting features of walking areas and the associated history, how to access these areas and route descriptions.

Melbourne Women's Walking Club

Presented to the Melbourne Women's Walking Club (MWWC) in recognition of the contribution of the club to the enhancement and development of recreational bushwalking in Victoria, furthering the objectives of Bushwalking Victoria and adding value to the wider Victorian community.

The formation of the MWWC in 1922 created the opportunity for women to go bushwalking which until then had been almost exclusively a male activity. Not content with just easy walks in 'settled' country the MWWC ran a wide range of trips that included day walks, weekend trips, and even extended trips into the mountains supported by packhorse. At a time when even recreational walking by men was seen as unusual, many of the early trips undertaken by MWWC members pioneered the way forward for generations of women bushwalkers. Just one example is the first traverse by a group of four women of the Barry Mountains.

The MWWC also played an active role in the Federation of Victorian Walking Clubs, now Bushwalking Victoria, from the start. The diligent minute taking and record keeping of MWWC has provided the details of the establishment and early activities that we have today. Over many years members of MWWC have contributed their time, energy, expertise and enthusiasm to the cause of bushwalking in Victoria. Since the 1930s the MWWC have run at least eight Federation Walks/Weekends.

Foundation Member

At a meeting on 15 May 1934, representatives from eight clubs approved the formation of a Victorian Federation of Walking Clubs (known as Bushwalking Victoria since 2007) with the following objectives:

1. Unite all Victorian Walking Clubs for the protection and advancement of mutual interests, to promote the pastime of tour walking and encourage good fellowship amongst affiliated bodies
2. Develop amongst walkers an interest in native flora and fauna and Victorian history
3. Assist in preventing vandalism and bush fires in national parks and bush areas
4. Promote the opening and maintenance of tourist tracks and the construction of tourist huts
5. Collate and distribute information regarding walking tour routes and other subjects of interest to walkers
6. Cooperate with tourist leagues, progress associations and other bodies to further the above objectives

Certificates were presented to the following clubs in recognition of their status as a foundation member and in appreciation for 75 years of dedicated service to the above objectives and the bushwalkers of Victoria.
